Description

Sydney Stonemasons was established in 2008 by third-generation Stonemason Roscoe Hannagan after living in London and abroad working on numerous heritage projects including the Monument in London. He has been developing his skills since he was five years old with his father David Hannagan, a Master Mason from London who inspired him to devote his life to the elegance and art of stonemasonry.

Bringing his expertise to Sydney, Roscoe has developed Sydney Stonemasons to be among the premier stonemasonry companies in the city, working on a number of prestige and high-profile heritage, commercial, and residential projects including the Sydney Museum of Contemporary Art (MCA), the Royal Botanical Gardens, Australian Museum, Wollongong Court House, Centennial Park, H&M Pitt St., Cockatoo Island, Our Lady of China Miranda, Hornsby Aquatic Center, Vibe Hotel Sydney, and Shore School North Sydney, to name a few, along with thousands of heritage, commercial, and residential projects in the country.

Sydney Stonemasons has a strong reputation for truth, integrity, respect, and quality work. We believe that quality communication among all stakeholders at all stages of the process is key to an excellent job, with results that lasts for generations. From the initial inquiry, quotational project management, mid-project review through to the project completion and handover, we pride ourselves on intelligent, practical articulation of the scope of works. As a result, we have become the people's choice for price, product, and process management, and work to understand and exceed the client's expectations on every project.
